CeWe photographic course delights user

Creativity was needed for by participants in the BUNTE Online competition for authors. Reader Bianca was able to convince the online editorial team with her text about German entertainer Oliver Pocher's declarations of love. Bianca won a fantastic weekend on Spiekeroog with her husband Peter and their son Felix.

At the invitation of CeWe Color, creativity was what was needed on the North Sea island. The weekend started with a coach ride in the dunes and a walk in the mudflats and through salt meadows – always on the lookout for the perfect motif for a photo.

Professional photographer Robert Geipel gave a lot of professional tips and of course the winning family also had first-class equipment at its disposal so that all the best motifs could be turned into the best photos.

And in fact, having collected numerous impressive photos, the outing was followed by the creation of an individual CeWe photo book in the "Künstlerhaus Spiekeroog", made with the best coastal impressions of the island. In an inspiring environment the small family was able to learn just how easy it is to put together a photo book and how much fun creating the book can be. In line with a fantastic creative weekend, the family was accommodated in the beautiful "Spiekerooger Leidenschaft" hotel.

Information about the CeWe photo book and the unique options for presenting photos can be found at www.cewe-fotobuch.de, where a free download of the award-winning CeWe photo book is also available.
